Housewife Can Learn To Spin Own Silk Thread

Tailor In Hospital Demonstrates How To Raise Silkworms

Chicago, Aug. 15.—(UPI)—Housewife who is a fan of the silk thread can learn to make her own silk thread just as her great-grandmother spun woolen yarn.

It's a ticklish job but William Vahraeh, who grew silk worms as a boy, says it can be done and has a large ball of silk in his hospital room to back him up.

He taught his nurses the knack of finding the end of the cocoon thread, one of the most intricate processes, and showed some of them, he said, and the third time they could find it alone.

Fed Mulberry Leaves
Recovering from an illness, the 64-year-old tailor bought 400 silk worm eggs in May, hatched them in egg cartons, and fed them on mulberry leaves from the hospital yard.

Within 32 days the worms had spun their cocoons, and he began unwinding their natural, yellowish threads upon a reel—enough silk, he estimated, to make three pairs of hosiery. But knitting is not in his field.

Vahraeh began handling silk worms in Austria-Hungary when he was 9 years old. It was a hobby with his mother who taught him the delicate process of loosening the cocoon thread and unwinding it.

"Every night we children had to do some work with the silk before mother would give us any bread," he recalled.

Now he finds the end of the cocoon thread from touch. "It's easy," he insisted.

He could put all the crippled patients to work, he suggested, if they would give him more room and buy some more eggs.

Some one is injured in a motor vehicle accident every 26 seconds.

There were 6,750 children under 5 years of age killed in accidents in the U. S. in 1940.

Illinois Republicans Start Drive For Court Elections

Springfield, Ill. Aug. 15.—(UPI)—Illinois Republicans have launched the initial phase of a campaign to recapture control of the state supreme court next June, when five of the seven seats will be at stake.

At the customary meeting of the GOP state central committee on the eve of Republican day at the state fair, party leaders decided to appoint men, two for each of the five judicial districts where elections will be held, to make a preliminary survey of the prospects.

Democrats now have a four-to-three edge in court membership. Three Democrats and two Republicans will risk their seats next year, and GOP forces hope to take the reins by holding their present strength and winning at least one of the seats held by Democrats.

Court Tests
GOP party leaders hinted that the impetus for the drive to win control of the court was the desire to insure favorable consideration for such portions of Gov. Dwight H. Berman's legislative program as are controversial and likely to be subjected to court test.

The administration bill taxing cigarettes two cents a pack and the oil conservation law are among statutes whose validity almost certainly will be contested. When Green permitted the oil bill to become law without signature, rumors were current that Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett had ruled it unconstitutional.

Despite earlier reports that the committee would adopt resolutions commending Green for his seventh months' record as Governor and declaring support of GOP isolationism in congress, no statements of policy were considered, Berve said.

St. Anne Legion To Receive Prize For Membership Gain

St. Anne Legion post No. 842 will be presented with a prize at the state convention of Springfield on Aug. 25 in recognition of the largest increase of members of any post in the state the past year.
